THE GARY DECISION

The Gary decision, coming at this time, will be a great relief to the temperance forces in their fight against the saloons. In many places the people are resorting to remonstrances again as they did a few years ago because that was the only way open to them.

It is said that Milford, which recently voted dry under exasperating conditions, a remonstrance has been signed by a sweeping majority and that no saloons will be allowed to come into the town. The same thing is being done at Pierceton. Some of the people of South Bend exasperated by the recent action of the city council in refusing to raise the liquor license, are on the point of remonstrating the saloon out of certain wards of that city.

Now, it will be when these remonstrances are considered by the county commissioners that the recent decision of the supreme court on the Gary case will come in so well. Herebefore the remonstrants were compelled to prove that every name on the remonstrance was good, if the applicant for liquor license declared under oath that they were not legal voters.

Such foolishness will be remembered by many in nearly every township in Marshall county. It made the signing of a remonstrance not only a disagreeable thing to do from both business and social viewpoints, but expensive when the signer had to make several trips to the county seat to prove in court that he was a legal voter at the time he signed.

Under the new decision, it will be necessary for the applicant for license to say in what particular John Smith or Jim Perkins are not legal voters, or else allow their names to stand on the remonstrance as good without any further trouble on their part than signing the paper when it was presented.

THE BUSINESS MEN

It was stated in the Democrat that the Second ward, where most of the business men of Plymouth live, was the one which went so heavily for saloons in Plymouth. The intention of the article was to show that the business men of the city were very strongly for the saloons.

Such a statement and inference is both untrue and unfair to the business men of Plymouth. There are no more of them in the Second than in either the other wards. It cannot be shown in any way that our business men had any more part in deciding the election than any other class of citizens, and this unwelcome burden should not be charged up against them.

As a matter of fact it was the purchased vote that decided the case for the saloons rather than that of any other particular class of our people.

DALMATIAN ANTS ARE COOKS

They Make Dough From Seeds, Form Cakes and Bake Them in the Sun.

The remarkable habits of the harvester ant have long been known to naturalists. Certain species not only harvest and store in granaries the seeds upon which they feed but actually plant and cultivate an annual crop of their food seeds. But now a still more wonderful story is told of an ant which is common in Dalmatia, Messor barbarus. According to Professor Neger of the well known forestry school near Dresden, this ant not only cuts leaves and gathers seeds but actually makes bread or biscuit.

The seeds are first sprouted, then carried into the sun and dried, then taken back to the underground chambers, where they are chewed into a dough. The dough is then finally made into tiny cakes, which are baked in the sun, then carefully stored for future use. From these observations it appears that the art of cookery is not wholly confined to the human race. All cooking is done by the sun, whether in the ripening of fruit or in the baking of bread in a stove. The heat obtained from fuel is simply stored up sunlight set free.

The Arab and the native Mexican speak of ripe fruit as fruit which has been cooked in the sun. The ant has somehow learned the art of sun cookery, the saliva with which it moistens the grain probably taking the place of yeast and sweetening through changes set up by its influence upon starch.—American Medicine.

The Scientific Butler. Science in its more awful forms is not confined to schoolboy howlers. One of the witty Canon Alinger's stories—quoted in Mr. E. V. Lucas' delightful anthology of letters, entitled "The Second Post"—proves it.

At a country house party a maid was dressing a guest's hair. "I hope, Parker," said the lady, "you are comfortable in your place?" "Oh, yes, ma'am," the maid replied, with great warmth. "The society down stairs is so superior. The butler leads the conversation."

"He is a refined man," she continued, with rising enthusiasm. "Indeed, quite scientific. He has been telling us all about evolution, and we quite understand it now."

"He says," the maid concluded, earnestly, "that we are all descended from Darwin."—Youth's Companion.

Question Pertinent.

Doctor Scott, joint parent with Liddell of the well-known Greek Lexicon, was at one time master of Balliol college, Oxford university, and master at all times of quiet sarcasm. A noble lord who had rooms in the buildings which adjoined the master's house and who, contrary to regulations, kept a dog in college, went to complain of the noise made by cats. After he had expatiated for some little time on this grievance, Doctor Scott said, with the gentle, slow drawl which lent additional force to his sallies: "Is that a cat, Lord Donoughmore, that I hear barking on your staircase every night?"

Chicago Lad Has Big Powered Auto

Hearne was one of the big winners of the 1910 season and included in his winnings the Fox River Cup at Elgin, Ill., as well as the majority of free-for-all events at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, last September.

VALUE OF A STRONG MEMORY

Some Who Possess It Are Not Otherwise Above the Ordinary—Children Learn Readily.

While a strong memory is a great convenience, it is not necessarily an advantage.

Cardinal Mezzofanti, whose memory for words was so retentive that he never forgot one after hearing it once, and which enabled him to acquire more than a hundred languages, was in most respects a very ordinary person. Pliny relates that Mithridates, king of Pontus, had so excellent a memory that he was able to speak fluently 22 languages native to the provinces of his vast empire. Yet he was a cruel barbarian.

A well-known peripatetic elocutionist and reciter still living declares that he can repeat, without further preparation, about 3,000 selections in prose and poetry. He probably tells the truth, since he has been training his mind in this particular direction for many years.

On the other hand, such men as Sir Walter Scott, Macaulay, and Gladstone were not only possessors of excellent memories, they were also men of good judgment.

Among human beings children have the most remarkable memories. Under favorable circumstances they will learn three and even four languages, so as to be able to express their thoughts with equal ease in any one of them by the time they are six or seven years of age.

And they accomplish this remarkable feat without any aid from the mnemonic devices to which adults are compelled to resort when they undertake a similar task. They learn words and phrases unconsciously, and rarely forget them as long as they live. On the other hand, grown-ups rarely acquire accurate pronunciation of a foreign language, although they may be able to use it with entire correctness. It is a common belief that the memory is more tenacious in early life than in later years. That seems to depend almost entirely on the individual.

EXPERIMENTS WITH SOUND

Blowing Out Candle With Tuning Fork and Resonator—Sand Figures on Metal Plates.

Reporting a physics lecture by Prof. Sylvester P. Thompson, the London Chronicle says: "The youngsters who attended were shown how a candle could be blown out by sound. In the first place, you want a very powerful tuning fork and a resonator (a hollow sphere of brass), which is exactly in harmony with it. When the tuning fork is struck it sets up waves of sound. The resonator, hearing the note, immediately responds with sympathetic waves, which are strong enough to blow out a candle placed behind it. Other experiments were the forming of what are known as Chladni sand figures on plates of metal by the influence of sound. The most beautiful results, as Professor Thompson explained, are obtained with flat plates of brass of uniform thickness and of a low note. When a bow is drawn along the edge so as to set up vibrations in one part, there is discord with the vibrations of the other parts, and the sound immediately assumes geometrical figures. The greater the discord the better the patterns. Hundreds of patterns can be produced in this way on one plate. Many demonstrations were made to show how, when things are tuned to the same note, they vibrate in sympathy. A big tuning fork was struck and then stopped, but another tuning fork, which was of exactly the same pitch, went on humming, though it had not been touched."

Footlardy Snake Keeper.

The only fatal case of snake bite on record in the London Zoological gardens was directly due to the foolishness of the victim. He was in charge of the snakes, and coming in one morning with some friends began to boast of his power over the creatures and the extent to which they would submit to be played with by one whom they knew. This led to practical experiments, the overconfident keeper taking an Indian cobra from its comfortable sleeping place, and declaring he was a snake charmer proceeded to swing it about his head and play other tricks with it.

A native snake charmer would have known there was no more certain way to rouse the snake's temper than this, for the race abhors rough handling or sudden movement of any sort. The result of the exploit was that the keeper was bitten on the nose. He was hurried off to the hospital, but died in a few hours.

IN FAVOR OF SUNDAY REST FOR CARRIERS

POSTMASTER STEINER FINDS BUSINESS MEN ARE WILLING TO HAVE P. O. CLOSED FOR BENEFIT OF HELP

IS LITTLE OBJECTION

Hour of Closing the Delivery Window May Also Be Changed from Eight To Seven O'clock at Night.

Pursuant to a letter from the Assistant Postmaster general, postmaster Steiner has been interviewing the business men of the city regarding closing of the carrier windows of the post office on Sundays. Mr. Steiner stated that nine-tenths of these spoken to about it favored the Sunday closing. If the general feeling is the same all over the order of the Department will go into effect next Sunday.

It will be understood that the order does not mean the absolute closing of the postoffice on Sundays. The general delivery window will be open as usual to accommodate the traveling public and local customers but the carriers' windows will be closed, thus giving them Sunday as a rest day. The remainder of the force will have the same hours they have had, taking turns off. Mail will be distributed to the boxes the same as before so that those who have boxes may get their mail on Sunday if they wish.

Another change which Mr. Steiner is anxious to bring about is the closing of the general delivery window at seven o'clock in the evening instead of at eight as now. He says that elsewhere the delivery window is closed at six, but that here we have been in the habit of holding it open until eight. This makes twelve hours a day service for the clerks and sometimes more. Mr. Steiner wants to shorten these hours to ten if possible, as he thinks that is long enough for a man to work.
